Completed

All the eggs are category 0, 1, and 2. That's the way to do it!

Almost completed

More than 90% of their offering complies with the Cage-Free Egg initiative. We are on the right track.

Implementation in progress

These are the supermarkets that are implementing the Cage-Free Eggs initiative but have not yet reached 90%. Keep it up!

In process

"The supermarket had committed to the initiative but has not yet informed AWO of their progress. They say they will do so soon, so we are setting a deadline for them to report back.

Not reporting

The supermarket has made it public that they have a Cage-Free Eggs policy, buuuut they have not informed us about their progress. So, we do not know if they are truly advancing towards selling only category 0, 1, and 2 eggs.

No commitment

These supermarkets have not even committed to using cage-free eggs in products that use eggs as an ingredient. Come on, it's a horror.

*In accordance with Carrefour's animal welfare policy:

From January 2023 100% of the fresh eggs marketed under its brand name come from cage-free farming.

By June 2024 100% of fresh eggs from national branded suppliers will come from cage-free rearing.

*Consum has no cage-free egg ingredient commitment, but reports its progress in introducing it in Consum own brand products.

*All shell eggs in Ahorramas own brand are cage-free, but they aren't reporting what percentage of the total they represent or the implementation of the commitment in other brands.
